II. Parent advisory

Peacock's Parent Advisory Committee will meet for its final session on Wednesday, February 23 at 7 pm. The committee has been extremely helpful in providing Peacock's administration with suggestions and recommendations on key practices at our building. In particular, it has been noted that a decline in attendance at most parent forums these past few years has taken place. Most recently, community forums such as the gang and drug awareness programs the police facilitated were met with low turnouts. In addition, school sponsored events such as this year's Curriculum Night and even parent conferences saw fewer parents in attendance than in past years. The committee suggested that school programs, in particular the Curriculum Night, could include modified versions of the aforementioned drug and gang programs during scheduled grade level breaks held in the open space of our atrium where parents have typically gathered for socializing. Another suggestion dealt with the poor responses we have had with our annual parent surveys. Last year, less than a 5% return was generated when we placed the survey on our web site. The average return over the years has been about 32%. The committee suggested that the surveys be distributed within the envelopes containing our 3rd quarter report cards. The completed surveys will also be returned in the same report card envelope hopefully providing a far higher return than in previous years. If you recall, the surveys were mailed home in late May with a return date of early June, typically after students had completed their year at Peacock. This earlier distribution and return date will hopefully help parents more accurately reflect upon their experiences with our school.
